CANVASS OF SENATE SHOWS BONUS VETO WILL BE SUSTAINED

Supporters of President Reported as in Excess of Thirty-three.

Harding's Message Against Measure to Be Fortified With Data.

HOUSE MAY GET IT TO-DAY

Treasury Department Sends Memo to White House on Bill's Dangerous Aspects.

By LOUIS SEIBOLD.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.

The $5,000,000 bonus paid on the taxpayers of America held the attention of executive officials and members of Congress and political leaders to-day to the exclusion of all other subjects.

The President devoted much of his time to the consideration of the measure and hearing arguments for and against it. He probably will announce to-morrow his decision on the most vexatious legislative irritant that ever engaged the attention of Congress.

Even the most optimistic advocates of the bonus bill passed by the two houses of Congress in the face of Administration protests believe the decision of the President will be a veto. The best informed executive officials and Congressional leaders predict that the message disapproving the bonus bill will greatly enhance the reputation of the President as a wise statesman and conscientious administrator.

Message to Be Convincing.

It was asserted by these officials that the President's message which will be sent to Congress with the vetoed measure will be politically strong and economically sound. It is furthermore declared that it will reflect the earnest thought of the President and the earnest thought of the nation, and that it will prove of little value as a business venture, provide few if any benefits of a permanent character to those eligible to receive them, and result in disastrous economic consequences to the people generally.

There existed to-night hardly any difference of opinion as to the fate of the bonus measure at the White House. There is equal confidence among opponents of the scheme that the effort to override the President's veto will fail on the final test in the Senate.

A canvass of the upper house which was communicated to the President this afternoon unmistakably revealed that a sufficient number—in excess of 33 votes—will be cast to uphold the Presidential veto and kill the bonus project in the present Congress at least.

The Senate poll taken by Senators New (Rep., Ind.) and Underwood (Dem., Ala.) was most gratifying to the opponents of the bonus scheme. Two Senators whose final conclusions were not revealed were added to the opposition.

Senator Weller (Rep., Md.), who is on his way from the Capitol, called to the Republican Whip Curtis to "pair" him in support of the Presidential veto. Senator McKinley (Rep., Ill.), who favored the bonus measure, also called from Europe a request that his vote be recorded under the pair arrangement in support of the Presidential veto. One or two shifts either way could be developed in the final test, but there is little or no chance of such action affecting the final result.

Probable Result in House.

The House of Representatives will probably vote to override the Presidential veto by a substantial majority, though much less than that which characterized its original consideration of the measure.

The legislative decks in both houses have been cleared for action on the bonus measure at the President's veto is received. The House leaders count upon having the Executive communication in hand to-morrow afternoon, or Wednesday at the latest. By common consent there will be little or no debate over the veto message. Everybody concerned in the transaction wants to get rid of it as soon as possible. Consequently, a record vote will be approached without loss of time and the measure sent to the Senate to receive the finishing touches.

Senatorial supporters and opponents of the bonus scheme are quite as eager to get rid of it as their conferees in the lower house. There may be a little backsliding of a political nature for home consumption when the bonus veto is received, but it will be of short duration and a veto will be reached in two or three hours. The leaders of the two houses expressed the opinion to-night that "the bonus will be out of the way, thank God, before Thursday."

Advantage With Opposition.

Proponents and opponents of the measure carefully checked the lists prepared by each side this afternoon and agreed that the Presidential veto will be upheld on the showdown. Under the legislative rules the measure must receive a majority of two-thirds in order to overcome a veto. The membership of the Senate is ninety-six. With

Public Debt Expenditures $418,000,000 Higher

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Slightly decreased ordinary receipts and heavily advanced disbursements on the public debt were shown in the statement of classified expenditures of the Government for August issued to-day by the Treasury.

Total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts for the month aggregated $221,000,000, compared with $225,000,000 during July, while public debt expenditures during August aggregated $453,000,000, compared with $35,000,000 the previous month.

Interest on the public debt, aggregating $188,000,000, was the largest item of expenditure chargeable against the August ordinary receipts, while redemption of Treasury certificates to the amount of $299,000,000 and retirement of victory notes amounting to $145,000,000 were the principal items of expenditure on the public debt.

STUDENT'S FATHER SAYS HE WAS KILLED

Green Scorns Suicide Theory of Boy Found Shot at Fairfield, Conn.

SAYS NOTE WAS PLANTED

Son Had Been Sent Off to College, but Stopped to Visit Girl at Norwalk.

The police of Fairfield and Norwalk, Conn., are making an investigation to determine whether John H. Green, 20, a student of New Rochelle, was murdered or committed suicide. When his body was found at Benson road, Fairfield, Sunday night, with a bullet wound in the right temple, encircled by powder marks, and a pistol and his motorcycle lying near by, it was thought that the young man had killed himself.

The police found in one of his pockets a note in which it was stated that he had planned suicide for two years, and this left no doubt in their minds concerning his fate. But yesterday John J. Green, father of the young man, who is employed in a New York broker's office, expressed the opinion that his son might have been murdered and the note "planted" in his pocket to mislead the authorities, and he asked that this theory be made the basis of an investigation.

Young Green was graduated from Harrods Preparatory School in Norwalk, Conn., last June, and his parents had arranged to send him to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, to study mechanical engineering.

Police Traced Him.

They accompanied him to the Grand Central Terminal Thursday and saw him board a train for Troy, and that was the last time he was seen by them alive. It had been planned for him to go on Wednesday, but he took his father's automobile and drove to Norwalk. The police found him there at the father's request and sent him back to New Rochelle. It was stated in the suicide note that the young man was trying to get a friend out of trouble in Norwalk.

When his parents failed to receive a telegram from young Green on Friday advising them of his safe arrival in Troy they communicated with the Institute and learned that he was not there. In view of his trip to Norwalk on Wednesday they suspected that he had got off the train before it left the terminal and made a second trip to the Connecticut city, and Mr. Green went there himself, but was not able to find him.

Knowing that his son had frequently visited Miss Lillian Erickson of Norwalk, Mr. Green telephoned to the Erickson home Sunday afternoon and asked Miss Gertrude Erickson, a sister of Lillian, if she had seen him. She said she had not, not knowing at the time that Lillian had met him earlier in the afternoon. He had just come up from New Rochelle on his motorcycle, he told her, although it was learned after his death that he had been staying at the Royal James Hotel in Norwalk since Thursday.

Girl Told Him to Leave.

He went on his way after a brief talk, saying that he was going to call her on the telephone that evening. When he called at 6:30, Miss Erickson said, and invited her to walk with him, she advised that he leave town at once, as his father was looking for him. He told her that he would never convert a weapon of any kind. A check for his tuition at the institute and a small amount of money were found in his college satchel, and a second trip to the Connecticut city, and Mr. Green went there himself, but was not able to find him.

ALL THE 47 TRAPPED MINERS FOUND DEAD BEHIND A BULKHEAD

Discovered by Federal Mine Agent Who Led the Rescue Crews.

NOTE TELLS OF DEATH

Indicates Men Succumbed Few Hours After the Fire Started.

EVERY EFFORT IN VAIN

Victims Built Barriers in Vain Attempts to Keep Out Deadly Gas.

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 18 (Associated Press).—All forty-seven of the miners entombed in the Argonaut mine August 27 are dead, it was announced officially just before 9 o'clock to-night.

All the bodies were found behind the second of two bulkheads the imprisoned men had built in a cross cut 4,350 feet down in the mine. Byron O. Pickard, chief of the Federal Bureau of Mines for this district, was the first man to go behind the bulkhead and discovered the bodies.

Note Found on Body.

A note found on one of the bodies indicated to the mine officials that the trapped men had met death within five hours after they were entombed. This note read as follows:

"A. M., gas bad."
The scrawled note, written in the same man who had attempted to leave word for those who might come after of the condition of the mine at that hour.

Mine officials declared that the condition of the cross cut behind the bulkhead was such that life could not have been sustained there by the entombed men for more than five hours.

The bodies were piled one on top of another and decomposition had progressed so far that identification would be impossible, Pickard reported.

The mine officials said the actions of the men, as evidenced by the bulkheads they built and other matters, including the scrawled note, indicated they had died soon after being entombed.

King Boris Wants Bride; Rich, Beautiful American

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD.

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—There's a vacant throne waiting for some American heiress willing to become the bride of a young but lonely monarch of the Balkans, King Boris of Bulgaria. His desire to wed a beautiful but wealthy American maiden was revealed to THE NEW YORK HERALD correspondent quite seriously by Premier Stambouliski himself, who is here at the head of the Bulgarian delegation to the League of Nations.

The Bulgarians, he explains, are a practical and democratic people who have lost their faith, since the war, in the value of royal alliances, and they believe that an American queen would prove a greater asset to their country than a European princess. Boris is 30, and insists his bride must possess beauty, health and wealth.

News of the secret marriage of Miss Marion C. Bourne, daughter of the late Commodore Frederick C. Bourne of the New York Yacht Club, who left an estate of many millions, to Robert G. Elbert of New York will come as a surprise to society. According to a brief announcement made last night by Frank Lyon Polk from his office at 15 Broad street, Miss Bourne was married to Mr. Elbert in Baltimore. The date or exact place of the wedding was not learned.
